Reporters without borders is getting funds from Multiple governments department of European union, USA and Sweden

Two More private NGOs are also funding Reporters Without Borders. One is the Open Society Foundation of George Soros and the Second is Omidyar Network(Luminate)

On April 21, 2020, The RSF based in Paris said that the pandemic had amplified and highlighted many crises and over shadowed freedom of the press. The high representative of the EU, Josep Borrell, stated that the pandemic should not be used to justify the limitation of democratic and civil freedoms and that the rule of law and international commitments should be respected. He said freedom of speech and access to information should not be limited and that measures taken against the pandemic should not be used to restrict human rights advocates, reporters, media staff and institutions of civil societies.^[53]

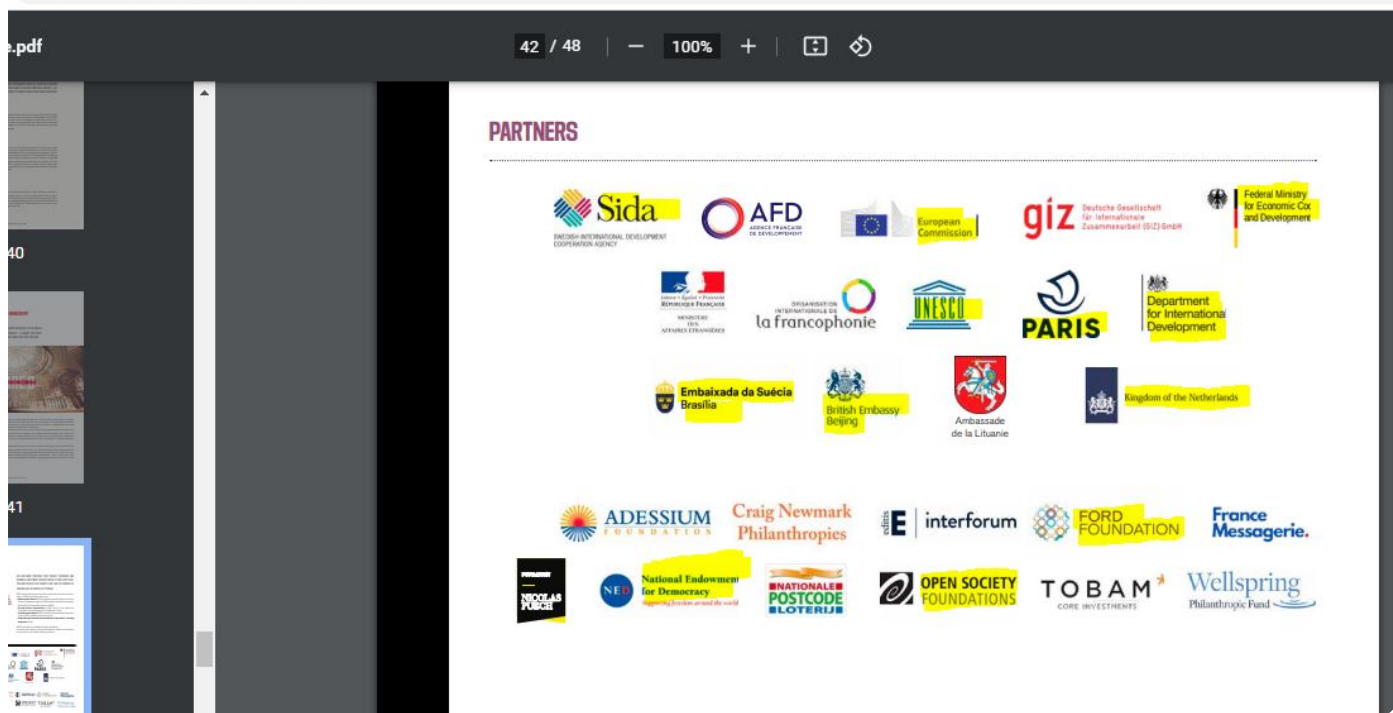

On June 25, 2020, RSF issued a statement entitled "Enforced online repentance, Iran's new method of repression". According to the report, the Revolutionary Guards summoned a number of journalists, writers and human rights activists and threatened to detain them, forcing them to express their regrets or apologies for publishing their comments in cyberspace in order to silence them.^[54]^[clarification needed]

According to the report, the Revolutionary Guards summoned and threatened to detain a number of journalists, writers, and human rights activists, forcing them to express regret or apology for posting their views online to silence them. Funding [edit]

RSF's budget for 2018 totalled €6.1m. Fifty per cent of the organization's income comes from public subsidy; 12 per cent from foundations; 24 per cent from the publication of photography books and 9 per cent from public donations. Foundations supporting RSF's work include the Adessium Foundation, the Directorate-General for International Cooperation and Development, the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency, and Pierre Omidyar.^[citation needed]

RSF has been criticised for accepting funding from the National Endowment for Democracy in the US and the Center for a Free Cuba. In response, Secretary-general Robert Ménard stated that funding from NED totalled 0.92 per cent of RSF's budget and was used to support African journalists and their families.^[56] RSF stated that it ceased its relationship with the Center for a Free Cuba in 2008.^[57]

The Russian Prosecutor-General's Office has deemed two U.S.-based NGOs as being "undesirable" in Russia and of threatening the country's national security.

The prosecutor's office said in a statement on August 18 that it will recognize the International Republican Institute (IRI) and the Media Development Investment Fund (MDIF) as "undesirable" and as posing "a threat to the foundations of the Russian constitutional system and the state's security."

It added that its decisions had been sent to the Justice Ministry and that the IRI and MDIF will be placed on a list of "undesirable" organizations.

Highlighting problems of particular urgency in the Asia-Pacific with links to background literature and groups working to resolve them.

Background: Like all associations with boundless hopes and limited means, the FDL-AP is obliged to focus its resources on a few battles at a time. Although we are now working intensely on Burma, Cambodia, and youth education, we are of course also deeply concerned with the many other tragedies in the region. This section will therefore try to illuminate lesser known struggles in the Asian neighborhood, which are also committed to self-determination, human rights and social justice. Due to its length, body count and now nuclear aspects, we begin with the Kashmir conflict, but also invite your assistance to expose other movements which desperately require public attention and support.

George Soros, who chairs a network of foundations that promote, among other things, the creation of open, democratic societies, flew into Chandigarh to meet 100-year-old Fori Nehru, wife of the late B K Nehru, one of India's most distinguished civil servants. Soros and Fori, both born in Hungary, have been exchanging correspondence over the years.

You will always find Soros and Omidyar in all Propaganda. They hate nationalism. and they fund against nationalist governments.

There are many deep states which are involved in the business of Arm supply on a large level.

They are not getting business by paying middle man just like earlier governments

So to save their business of trillions, they pay this type of propaganda makers few millions.

They create and funds protest too. They just want unrest in the county, so later they can have their favorite government who purchase their weapons.

How can they allow Narendra Modi Ji to rule as he has announced to become #AtmnirbharBharat in weapons too!

If Bharat will produce their weapons then foreign deep states will lose their biggest market in the world. It is the business of trillions.
